INTRODUCTION

The year 1998, as a year in which general elections were held, did not bring considerable change to Bosnia-Herzegovina in the sense of political progress. There has also been a lack of significant realization of announced processes that would have contributed to Bosnia-Herzegovina's functioning as a unified state, and the implementation of something that is still a primary issue in the third post-Dayton year – return of expelled people to their homes.

We are encouraged by the fact that, with the help of international factors, certain democratic processes have been implemented, which create a more favorable environment for the Foundation to promote initiatives aimed at building "open society infrastructure."

In the year 1998, Open Society Fund Bosnia-Herzegovina marked the fifth anniversary of its work, which was a good opportunity to analyze the effects of our operation in the past period. The responses that we have received have convinced us once more that the Foundation has been a significant factor in a time when survival was the only aim of living, but also in a time of normalization which offers us conditions for developing activities dedicated to the essential mission of the operation of the Soros Foundations network.

Our program activities, in the sense of priorities, are a continuation of what the Foundation has achieved in the past years. Education programs and independent media programs have been at the top of our interest, which can be seen in the review of allocations in individual programs.

The education system, which is, unfortunately, still a reflection of the unsettled political situation, has still not, despite efforts, undergone a general change in the sense of unifying education programs. However, projects supported by the Foundation in 1998 resulted in the fact that the individual segments of the education system in the country were given the necessary development impetus on the long path of coming closer to the education systems that exist in developed, democratic societies.

The Step by Step methodology, in addition to pre-school education, has been expanded to seven elementary schools in the Federation. Students, perhaps for the first time, met with methods and working conditions that are highly stimulating both for the student and for the teacher, which is certainly a novelty in comparison to the fixed, rigid study models. Computerized classes and introduction of multimedia into the teaching process are some of the projects that we believe will require a long-term period for complete implementation, both because they call for high financial resources and for permanent training of teachers.

Debate, as critical discussion and free exchange of opinion, was completely accepted by high school youth in 1998. It has been expanded to 27 clubs in high schools and one at the University of Sarajevo. Debate has also been promoted in a cycle of weekly programs "For and Against" on state television, in which the "Karl Popper Modified Pattern" is presented in an interesting way.

A considerable part of our budget has been used to help in the development of scientific research work, inclusion of our scientists in international flows, and presentation of world achievements to the local scientific community.

An initiative that deserved special attention last year is the LEA/LINK Project intended for non-governmental organizations, implemented with several international organizations operating in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

In contact with NGOs in Bosnia-Herzegovina, a Law Group that was formed within the project, with the help of international experts, made a proposal of a Draft Law on Associations and Foundations with the intention of proposing it to relevant state bodies for adoption. In view of the significance and role of NGO's in the development of democracy, issues were raised that are of vital significance for the operation of the non-governmental sector. One of the primary issues is a single law regulating the operation and work of the non-governmental sector, especially if one bears in mind the fact that in Bosnia-Herzegovina there are four laws on NGO's – three in the Federation and one in the Republika Srpska.

The discussion version of the Law on Associations and Foundations is aimed at providing a law that will be clear, that will protect the internationally recognized rights to freedom of speech, association, and assembly; and enable the existence of non-governmental organizations as independent legal entities. A regulated legal structure is certainly one of the first links in the efficient and effective operation of the third sector.
For a society like ours, there is a need for a public education campaign that will contribute to the development of civil awareness concerning the importance of the existence and work of the non-governmental sector.
An autonomous, critical attitude towards processes and actors in society, media efficiency, independent orientation regardless of the nature of ownership, respect for the concept of the Daytonian Bosnia-Herzegovina, promotion of one's knowledge and competence, are some of the proceeding criteria that we used in deciding which individual media projects to support.
We are overjoyed by the fact that the media projects we supported have affirmed our conviction that they have potential, an important idea and concept. Certain social occurrences last year showed that Bosnia-Herzegovina has media which, in addition to the role of informing, also are acquiring the characteristics of a force that criticizes political and overall social happenings.

In the year 1998 a translation of Karl Popper's book "Open Society and Its Enemies" appeared in Bosnia-Herzegovina for the first time.
We are sure that our efforts have contributed to bringing Bosnia-Herzegovina at least one step closer to open, democratic society, no matter how far it may seem to us from this perspective.

Jakob Finci, Executive Director

GENERAL SCIENCE AND EDUCATION

Circumstances defining the educational sector in B-H remained as complex as in the years following the Dayton Agreement. The three independent educational systems present in B-H in 1998 continued to be incompatible, teaching different languages and histories based on different laws and curricula. Curricula and textbooks (and quite likely teachers in their classes) stimulate ethnic separation, national stereotypes and prejudices rather than reconciliation, tolerance, and understanding. Introduction of moderate approaches meets heavy resistance on the political level. Being unable to influence introduction of systemic changes, we concentrated on a series of small- scale "bottom-up" projects which effectively affected educational practice in pre-school, primary and secondary, and higher education. Responding to the changing situation in B-H and other donors' involvement, several educational programs were phased out and several new ones were initiated in 1998.

National Scholarships Program

OSF B-H was the only NGO that offered stipends to students through the National Scholarships Program in 1994. As a number of NGOs and governmental organizations joined in with similar selection criteria – the academic success being the only selection criterion – we had been reducing the program for several years, and 1998 was the last year we offered scholarships in this form.
1998/99 School Year
179 university level stipends of 1.000 DM each for students of teacher training colleges at universities in Sarajevo, Zenica, Mostar, Tuzla, Banja Luka, and Bihać.
Total ..... 182.570 DM

Student stipends for B-H students studying in Croatia

Open Society Institute New York provided funding for student stipends for 45 students from Bosnia and Herzegovina studying in Croatia. This program is also being phased out.
Funded by Open Society Institute New York
..... 124.500 DM

Soros Computer Schools

We no longer cover running costs of Soros Computer Schools in the Federation after we donated equipment to the schools where courses were organized. Those schools will continue to organize courses for their students out of their own budgets. In addition to existing locations, a primary school in Zenica (Musa Ćazim Ćatić) and a secondary school in Živinice (Mješovita Srednja Škola) received a grant in computer equipment to organize "computer literacy" courses in accordance with the curriculum devised by us. Our last effort in Sarajevo was a special course on email and internet.
The only Soros Computer School in B-H that received full support in 1998 was in Banja Luka. Established early in 1998 at the Faculty of Electrical Engineering, it already has trained some 800 primary and secondary school students to basics of computer use. Thousands of students are waitlisted for future courses.
A commitment in the amount of DM 45.000 was made late in 1998 to train 300 university staff to use of computers and Internet.
Total Program Costs ..... 74.219 DM

Distance Learning

A new project aimed at secondary schools, faculties and business community. 1998 was declared as the year of creating preconditions through activities around four main domains:
- Selection and training of the Information Technology Team
- Upgrade of existing equipment
- Defining content through open competition and a seminar

- Testing pilot projects
Total Program Costs ..... 263.142 DM

STEP BY STEP PROJECT

In February, 1998, ISSA (the International Step by Step Association) was formed and registered. The formation of this Association assures stronger international activity and better connection of 26 countries, members of ISSA, including Step by Step Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Since in September 1998, two years of project implementation in 67 preschool classrooms was concluded, the Step by Step project has opened five Model Training Centers. Opening of the Centers in Sarajevo, Zenica, Mostar and Tuzla is a continuation of our strategy for creating a permanent system of education of preschool teachers as well as offering quality conditions for practical education and work of students from Academy of Pedagogy, Faculty of Philosophy and Secondary School for Teachers, professionals from early childhood education, and parents. For these Centers, kindergartens where implementation of the Step by Step methodology has been going on since 1996, teachers are selected and trained for different activities in the scope of early childhood education. In coordination with the office in Sarajevo, Centers organize training, workshops, discussions, promotions, etc. Our goal is to create a well-organized network for sharing experiences and information gathered from the whole country.

Expenditures were as follow:

Training ..... 68.640 DM
Capital Costs (Furniture, Education Material one- time purchasing, Equipping of Parent Room): ..... 40.480 DM
Operational Costs (Teacher bonus, Refreshments for parents, Educational supplies): ..... 980.841 DM
Subtotal ..... 1.089.961 DM

The beginning of 1998 saw the realization of the Step by Step project in first grades of 7 primary schools: four in Sarajevo and one each in Zenica, Tuzla, and Mostar. Before the beginning of the school year 98/99, we introduced methodology for first grades to Canton Ministries of Education, got permission for the work, equipped schools, and trained teachers. Lecturing in these schools is based on Step by Step methodology, that is, application of modern methods for work with children in learning environments. Besides regular teaching activities, these schools are involved with the continuing education of teachers and students. Expenditures were these:

Training: ..... 33.440 DM

Capital Costs (Furniture, Education Material one time purchasing, Equipping of Parent Room): ..... 73.198 DM

Operational Costs (Teacher bonus, Refreshments for parents, Educational supplies): ..... 62.304 DM

subtotal: ..... 168.942 DM

In 1998 we continued our connection with the Academies of Pedagogy in Sarajevo, Zenica, and Mostar; and the Faculty of Philosophy in Sarajevo and the Faculty for Special Education in Tuzla, as well. In order to promote Step by Step methodology in these Higher Institutions, we enabled and supported participation of eleven professors at a seven-day seminar in Ohrid, Macedonia; equipped one methodic classroom at the Academy of Pedagogy in Sarajevo; and made several donations of professional books. Students of early childhood education have courses about Step by Step methodology and practice in our Centers and kindergartens. Three professors wrote professional and scientific analyses of Step by Step project in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Expenditures were..... 47.520 DM

The cost of translation, printing, photocopying, of materials, regular supervisions, and consultants was ..... 194.515 DM

TOTAL ..... 1.500.938 DM

Strategy planned for 1998 was focused on the secondary education, bearing in mind that the World Bank, UNICEF and a number of foreign governments and cities (through bilateral assistance) successfully covered the needs of primary education. A strong emphasis was put on introduction of new technologies, more precisely on using multimedia and the Internet in teaching process as well as in special projects of establishing links among schools. Such a strategy remains a priority for 1999. Through purchasing new computers and equipping existing computer classrooms with additional hardware and software, and collaborating with Open Society Fund B-H Internet Program and other NGO's and GO's working on the same or similar programs, we succeeded in establishing a network of 25 secondary schools with complete and functional computer classrooms and Internet access in B-H.

That is considered a good base for expanding the existing Open Society Fund B-H programs on the whole territory of Bosnia-Herzegovina. Programs like Reminiscence on the Future and High School Debate Program proved to be very well accepted and realized in such a way that they could become an important integrative factor in linking schools throughout B-H, exchanging ideas and considerations about the teaching process.

Regarding joint programs realised through matching funds with other NGO's and GO's, we succeeded in completing OBNOVA Project (University of Pittsburgh), continued with Youth Community Initiatives (with CRS), and started a new project, Democratic School Management (in collaboration with KulturKontakt-Austrian Ministry of Education).

In 1998 special attention was paid to our "visiting professors" program, which also successfully started in the other bh. entity (Republic of Srpska). Around 75 lecturers from Croatia, Slovenia,Yugoslavia, USA and from the rest of Europe gave their lectures and conducted exams for students at the Faculty of Economics, Faculty of Law, Faculty of Philosophy, Faculty of Political Science, Faculty of Criminalistic Science and Academy of Fine Arts of Sarajevo University, and at faculty of Economics and Faculty of Natural Sciences at Banja Luka University. This program was developed and carried out in cooperation with Slovenian and Croatian Foundations and through this program, besides strenghtening the scientific and teaching process, we were strengthening connections of Bosnian universities with not only Croatian, Slovenian and Yugoslav universities, but with universities in Europe and worldwide.
Our support to MA and Ph.D. candidates from social sciences and humanities as well as from hard and technical sciences was continued in 1998. 15 stipends from the field of social sciences and humanities and 24 stipends from the hard sciences were given to MA and Ph.D. candidates. We also supported publishing of university books and textbooks, scientific research projects, organization of symposiums, round tables and workshops, and we covered travel costs for Bosnian academics traveling to a conferences abroad.

Soros Supplementary Grants Program - SSGP

The program was created to assist students from Central and Eastern Europe, and the former Soviet Union studying within the region. This program offers small grants to students of the social sciences and humanities who have already managed to cover most of the costs of their study. In 1998, Lejla Džubur, Bosnian student in Russia and Fatima Hašimbegović in Poland, received those grants. Program was financed by OSI New York.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE PROGRAM

SELP (Soros English Language Program)
The major projects in English Language Program in 1998 were Soros language school with branch schools in Mostar and Zenica, establishing of the school in Banja Luka, Association of English Language Teachers in B-H, and Program of workshops for teachers in primary and secondary schools.

Soros Language School
Soros Language School was established in 1996 to meet the needs in foreign language teaching in the country and to develop the standards of language teaching.
The school was given a three-year budget and 1998 was the last year of financial support to the school. It is meant to become an independent, non-profit organization that would provide high quality language training with native teachers, modern teaching tools and materials.
Total number of students in 1998 in the school (together with branch schools in Mostar and Zenica) was 2045.
In 1998 the school budget was..... 53.717 DM.
Also, it received in-kind donation in equipment in amount of..... 10.933 DM
Branch school Zenica budget was ... 28.255 DM
Branch school Mostar budget was ... 17.556 DM

Soros Foreign Language School - branch Anglia, Banja Luka
Open Society Fund B-H and Anglia, Banja Luka, established the foreign language school in Banja Luka in September 1998. The school enrolled 296 students in the first semester. The classes were conducted by 5 teachers at the Faculty of Electrical Engineering.
In 1998 the budget for the school was ..... 23.400 DM.

B&H Association of English Language Teachers (BHETA)
Inaugural Assembly of B-H Association of English Language Teachers was held on 12

December, 1998. The help in organization of the Assembly and financial support in statute design and the registration costs were given by Open Society Fund B-H and the British Council.
OSF B-H participation was ..... 5.000 DM.

Primary and Secondary Schools Teachers' Training

In 1998 Open Society Fund B-H together with British Council and the Pedagogical Institute conducted a series of teachers' training workshops in Sarajevo, Zenica, Tuzla, and Mostar.
The aim of these workshops was to improve the standard of English teaching in Bosnia and Herzegovina by offering a regular teacher development program for all teachers in the country.
The sessions were led by experienced and well- qualified native English teachers in the SPELT program. However, the long-term aim is for Bosnian teachers to use this forum to conduct their own workshops and seminars.
The expenses for organization of the seminars, travel expenses, and fees for teachers were ..... 3.000 DM.

SPELT (Soros Professional English Language Teaching)

SPELT is a network program in the Soros foundations that recruits English language teachers from USA and sends them to different schools in the countries of Central and East Europe.
In 1998 there were 3 SPELT teachers in Sarajevo at the Faculty of Philosophy, English Language Department: Noreen Skennion, Gene Moffitt, and Chris Biehl.
Open Society Fund B-H covered the accommodation expenses and salary supplement for the teachers.
Total SPELT..... 25.537 DM.

TOTAL ..... 167.398 DM

INTERNET/AUTOMATION

Activities within the Internet Program in 1998 may be grouped into two large groups of projects through which the program was implemented:
- Infrastructure development projects and Internet connection,
- Internet content development programs and Internet education.

The most important items in the first group are certainly the establishment and putting into operation of the North-South Network for non-profit and academic users in the cities of Tuzla, Zenica and Mostar on the Internet, and connecting the Banja Luka University to the Internet several months later. This connection was carried out via completely equipped Internet centers, with all the necessary computer equipment and telecommunication resources, which were then connected to the Internet through high-speed quality links. The implementation of this project enables the creation of all needed Internet services, easy expansion of capacities, and local profiling of user needs. The most significant users, and in most cases also the operators of these Internet centers, are the universities of Tuzla, Banja Luka, Mostar and faculties and institutes in Zenica. In addition to this global project, Open Society Fund Bosnia-Herzegovina has supported the establishment of Internet connections for numerous non-profit organizations: ANUBiH, Sarajevo Film Festival, MESS, Constitutional Court of Bosnia-Herzegovina, many media organizations (Oslobodjenje, Onasa, BH Dani, Alčak, Radio Zid...), libraries in Tuzla, Sarajevo, Zenica, Association of Ham Radio Operators of Bosnia-Herzegovina, Sarajevo Faculty of Economics MIS Center, many humanitarian organizations of regional and local importance (Phare, La Benevolencija, Sezam, Cna...), and 10 or so high schools.

Within the development of Internet service and education, the most significant activities were carried out in providing the necessary know-how for mastering new technologies. Therefore, in addition to providing the needed literature and program tools, professional training in the fields of server administration, and inter-networking were organized for the needs of the universities of Tuzla, Mostar and Banja Luka, as well as the Zenica Internet Center. With the same goal in mind, the travel of staff from four universities to Bratislava for the CEENet WorkShop and a conference bringing together many countries from central and eastern Europe were supported, as well as participation in roundtables on the Internet in Bosnia-Herzegovina (Tuzla, PROMO International 98). At the same time a series of preparatory activities were carried out for projects that will promote original Bosnian-Herzegovinian content on the Internet, which will be implemented next year. A considerable part of the Internet Program activities is related to basic support for "distance learning" processes, as well as the "Distant learning" Project implemented within Open Society Fund B-H, which involves many individuals and organizations from all over the country. In addition to these activities, the Internet Program has continually supported all Open Society Fund B-H Centers in establishing Internet connections, services, and implementation of projects encompassing an Internet component. Bearing in mind that there has been some stabilization in the field of providing Internet connections, and using the experiences of more developed countries, Open Society Fund B-H's Internet Program will in the coming period support efforts by organizations and individuals to create and promote original Internet content, with continual support to education as the foundation for implementing any project in the field. A total of 420.000 DM was spent for implementing the Internet Project in 1998.

Open Society Fund B-H Media Program has tried to provide a measure of rationality and reality, insisting on clear criteria and nonarbitrary expertise. Never forgetting the strategic goal, we made some tactical compromises. Activities in 1998 were a logical continuation of our earlier efforts.

We have been trying to follow those projects that show certain development. We can state that a number of media have succeeded, in spite of all objective difficulties, to reach more stable positions on the "BH media market" (the last term really has to be taken rather conditionally).

Open Society Fund B-H put an effort into being of help also to a number of media projects that go through longer crises induced by objective factors, because we saw those media as having some valuable input into the local public discourse which should not be lost.

As a third category, we have projects that are losing our support, because their development perspectives cannot be seen any more, and they do not make any substantial contribution to the existing media scene. They exist absolutely marginally, based only on the pure enthusiasm and persistence of their promoters, together with occasional interventions from some donors.

Capability for improvisation was an essential quality in war circumstances for the functioning of media. In cases where this was paired with previous professional experience and knowledge, we got the best achievements of journalism in war conditions. Now in peace, improvisation alone can no longer be accepted as a basic skill in journalism. The peacetime context puts stress on many other qualities and capabilities that make good journalism and independent media. This transition, from "mentality of improvisation" to genuine journalism as a complex activity, has not really been made by a good part of B-H media. In regard to this we need continuously to support professional development of local media.

SOROS MEDIA CENTER

There are two main characteristics of the Soros Media Center activities: continuation of work on basic educational programs (schools, workshops and seminars) and further development of the Informative-Documentary Center through the Library, the Data Base, the offer of the Internet, newspapers and magazines, as well as the complete sets of journals from Bosnia and Herzegovina published during the war (1992-1995) and the Video Archive.

We have continued to be present more firmly and more actively on the entire territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina, especially after the establishment of the Center in Banjaluka in January, 1998, in co-operation with the Association of Independent Journalists of the Republic Srpska.

The BBC School of Journalism is still the main program of the Soros Media Center. During 1998 there were two principal programs for young journalists in Bosnia and Herzegovina (each of 10 weeks duration) and several specialized programs for journalists and cameramen. Since the foundation of the BBC School in June, 1996, so far 118 journalists from both Bosnian entities have passed through it. At the same time, there have been numerous workshops and schools for journalists in several towns of Bosnia and Herzegovina (Banjaluka, Livno, Tuzla, Zenica...).

The Informative-Documentary Center has 1,183 books at its disposal, out of which there are 67 encyclopaedias. About 55% of the book fund collection are in the languages of former Yugoslavia, while the rest are primarily in English. The archive of journals published during the war presently consists of 400 titles with almost 9,000 individual copies. An additional 7,000 copies are currently being processed. The Soros Media Center Reading Room has an average number of monthly visits from 100 to 120 users. Ten percent of the users are not citizens of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The average number of photo-copies of various texts in the Informative-Documentary Centre is about 2,000. The Data Base presently analyzes eight papers published in Bosnia and Herzegovina (three dailies, three weeklies and two bi-weeklies). The Data Base, which started functioning in October, 1995, presently has 15,000 pages of printed journalist materials available. The Video Archive has at its disposal almost 3,000 tapes of various content. In 1998, in co-operation with two chief journalist associations in Sarajevo and Banjaluka, the Soros Media Center published three books in the field of journalism.

LAW PROGRAM

In 1998 Open Society Fund Bosnia-Herzegovina made an effort to support through the Law Program those projects that will contribute to the mission of the open society idea. On the path to open society, building a state of law is essential, based on the rule of law with independent judiciary. In Bosnia-Herzegovina, with the signing of the Dayton Peace Agreement, the building of a complex state structure, which is regulated by 13 constitutions, commenced. Some legal institutions were established in Bosnia-Herzegovina for the first time, such as Ombudsmen, Human Rights Court, and Human Rights Chamber. The judicial system is based on the following four levels: state, entity, Cantonal and municipal. Harmonization of constitutions, and after that other laws, will be a longtime task.

It is clear from the above that Open Society Fund Bosnia-Herzegovina focused its attention on supporting projects aimed at giving specific assistance in legal education, legal system transformation, and legal assistance to citizens whose rights have been violated.

In 1998 support was given through Open Society Fund Bosnia-Herzegovina programs, regional Soros Foundation programs and block grants with regional programs. Total expenditure for projects in the field of law is:

1. DES Sarajevo:
   Project of education of employees and publishing of the book of reference ..... 16. 800 DM

The Law Center is the macro project within the framework of the Open Society Fund B-H, established in March, 1996, with the intention of providing assistance to the legal profession and NGO Sector in fulfilling their tasks of aiding in the transition of Bosnia and Herzegovina towards a democratic state. Within this context, the activities of the Law Center have been channeled towards inciting democratic development in two closely-linked domains: the domain of law and that of civil society.

In 1998, besides numerous individual actions relating to significant issues of democratic development of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Law Center continued the realisation of its long-term projects: the post-graduate studies at the Law School, University of Sarajevo, the LEA/LINK Project, the Commercial Law Project, and the Small Businesses Development program.

- In the 1998 academic year, The Law Center was an active participant in the realisation of post-graduate studies at the Law School in Sarajevo on the "Transformation of Law in B-H." Within these post-graduate studies, the Law Center has organised lectures on various themes vital for the accession of Bosnia and Herzegovina into the European integration. Lectures were held by professors from European and US universities. The Law Center has provided scholarships for the 4 attendees of these post-graduate studies.
- The LEA Project (Law, Education and Advocacy) is an integral part of the LEA/LINK Project with two essential goals. They are to improve the environment for NGOs in Bosnia and Herzegovina, and to raise the awareness of the role of NGOs in general. The Legal Task Force of this Project, with the assistance of a team of foreign experts, worked on producing a working version of Draft Law on Associations and Foundations. After suggestions and amendments given by the NGOs, the final text of the Draft Law is to be published in NGO News and, with participation of the NGO sector, will be presented to the legislators to undergo adoption procedure. Within the NGO community seven Regional Representative Offices were established throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Regional representatives held meetings in their regions in order to inform the local NGOs of the developments of the project and to raise awareness of their role in society. An Advisory Board comprised of representatives of local NGOs gives overall guidance to the project. Funding the LEA project was done by OSI New York and USAID. The World Bank, OHR,OSCE,EU, IRC and ICVA took part in the Project.

- The Law Center participates in the realisation of a two-year USAID Legal and Regulatory Reforms Project in the field of commercial law. Scores of debates and round tables have been organised in the Law Center focusing on specific issues relating to commercial legislation. Moreover, the Law Center holds the repository of legal material produced do so far by the above mentioned USAID project.

- The Small Businesses program is a three-year project launched by the Law Center (October 1996 - October 1999), and funded by OSI - New York and American Joint Distribution Committee - New York. The charity organisation La Benevolencija - Sarajevo is the partner in this program. Basic objective of the program is to provide a range of services to the local entrepreneurs, primarily the Small Business School, business consulting, and micro funding for small companies. The Small Business School, scheduled for three weeks (60 lectures) is the training course that offers the attendees practical knowledge needed for the establishment and management of small enterprise. So far, the School has been attended by 671 students, of which 231 were enrolled in 1998. The Law Center organised two specialised courses - in Denmark and Sarajevo - for our refugees in Denmark and Sweden willing to return home. Within the program, La Benevolencija provides micro loans for the attendees of the program who offer good business plans.

- In 1998, within its Legal Publication program, the Law Center published the following books:

1. Karl Popper: Open Society and Its Enemies (2 volumes)

Through programs in the field of civil society, Open Society Fund Bosnia-Herzegovina in 1998 supported organizations and projects that will contribute to building a civil society based on democratic principles, in which the citizens of Bosnia-Herzegovina will enjoy the equality and freedoms guaranteed by constitutions and international documents. Particular attention was given to supporting projects which put additional effort into reconciliation, establishing dialogue and broken ties and generally into building a common foundation for the future.
Support was given through four programs:

- Human rights,
- Minority rights,
- National and regional women's programs,

In view of the difficulties in launching the Public Administration Program, support was given to projects that will contribute to efficient work of the administration. It was necessary to bear in mind that the decisive factor was the time needed to adjust to peace which brings many difficulties in resolving the accumulated problems. One of the biggest problems in Bosnia-Herzegovina is the establishment of state functions through common institutions and the difficulties that Bosnian-Herzegovinian citizens are faced with in communication with the administrative bodies.
In 1999 Open Society Fund Bosnia-Herzegovina, utilizing the potentials of national and regional programs for local governments and public services, allocated support in the amount of:

1. Association of Citizens "Budućnost", Modriča:
   Project: Responsibility of the Modriča Municipality Board Members.... 5. 000 DM

- MIT Center, i.e. management education
- Workshops, Literature & Software from various experts' workshops, seminars, as well as broad economic titles and software requested by other institutions.
- Privatization Research support for various research projects which treated different aspects of privatization.
- Other View : program mainly oriented to another approach and thinking in the field of economy as an alternative to those which are already established.
- Enterprise Support, for different projects submitted by economic institutions.

All of these programs were publicly announced as "open competition" with implementation within Bosnia and Herzegovina.
One of the constant parameter programs continues to support economics magazines, analytical, problem - oriented journalism and development of newly established magazines .
The Program was a channel for numbers of Bosnian experts to attend and take part in very important seminars and symposiums abroad. This provided Bosnian economics science to go on to Europe and the world scene.
Also, a number of significant economics events in Bosnia and Herzegovina were supported either by finance or by logistics.
Expert literature was provided for all the Faculties of Economy within Bosnia and Herzegovina, according to their needs in their libraries. A part of the book donations was realized through purchasing their own books.

Within the Publishing program in 1998, Open Society Fund B-H sought to support publications which promote open society and help to develop the publishing industry as a strong, diversified, independent institution of importance in building civil society.
In order to achieve these goals we designed the following principles:
- to focus on those segments of the "book chain" (from authors and developers, through publishers and distributors, to the end users) where intervention would be most effective as a given objective
- to take advantage of a project's commercial potential to minimize reliance on support, to maximize efficiency, and to allow for capital accumulation by publishers
- to use the most appropriate combination of grants, loans, and consumer support for a given objective
- to use financial support as an opportunity for knowledge transfer through training
- to avoid creating or maintaining non-competitive monopolies.
In accordance with stated goals and contemporary needs in publishing in 1998, the support for publishing of individual titles is reduced, especially the purchase of copies, since this kind of support does not induce publishers to promote their editions, distribute it, and sell at the end, and gain financial stability.

Priority in the program is given to projects which will help in establishing institutions like professional associations of publishers, booksellers, and copyright agencies.
In 1998 the Open Competition for the best novel, book of stories, and book of essays is preserved. Its objective is the support of authors and the promotion of Bosnian literature production. This is one of the project in the publishing program where OSF B-H has the a full response from Republika Srpska.
Within the Translation project realized together with the Center for Publishing Development, Open Society Institute Budapest, 12 titles in humanities have been supported.

Development of democratic society is not possible without undisturbed access to information. Despite very speedy development of information technology, importance of libraries has not diminished. One of the priorities of the Library Program is to secure complete access to information, as well as support for the development of librarianship in general. Having that in mind, as well as the difficult state of the library collections in B-H, Library Program announces open competition for improvement of library collections and for projects for development of librarianship. We received 425 requests, and it was an extremely difficult task to select the 143 projects that were finally supported. It is important to say that among granted libraries there were 96 libraries in primary schools that received funds to purchase compulsory reading. According to strategy, the Program gave support to automation of libraries and connecting to the single system.
In the course of the year, several librarians had opportunity to participate in the work of international workshops, seminars, conferences, and congresses, as well as to spend three months at the Library of Congress, Washington, DC, SAD. In October, the seminar "Collections Development" was organized in Sarajevo, with participation of more than 40 librarians, from the whole of Bosnia-Herzegovina.
Most of these activities were done in cooperation with Open Society Institute

Budapest - Network Library Program which supports development of libraries.

Arts & Culture Program gives support to artists, as well as culture institutions and organizations. Principal goals of the Program in 1998 were: strengthening of culture exchange and dissemination of information, presentation of B-H art in the country and abroad, fostering activities of artistic associations, as well as support to projects with long-term effects. Support is also given to the production and organization of cultural events.

Sixty-four projects in the field of film culture, music, all forms of performing arts, cultural heritage, etc. were supported. Culture institutions, organizations, individuals, and ad-hoc groups coming from Sarajevo, Mostar, Tuzla, Gradačac, Banja Luka, Čitluk, Travnik, Zenica, and Bihać were awarded grants through the Program.

Other activities included: English courses for employees in Sarajevo cultural institutions and procurement of magazines from the field of arts and culture for the library of the Soros media centre.

In accordance with the program policy defined by the SCCA (Soros Center for Contemporary Art) Board, the Centre focused its activities in 1998 on production and its promotion in the country and abroad; setting-up and developing international contacts; and informational and educational activities. By acting in that manner and by supporting in production organizational and financial ways of non-traditional art expressions, the Centre contributed to the emergence of a new art scene. In the context of art events in Bosnia and Herzegovina, SCCA - Sarajevo has become an important element of modernizing the local art production and its involvement in global art developments. In all segments of its programs the Centre opened a two-way communication, following this principle: as much as we have the world here, the world will have us there.
In the year of 1998 the Centre started to equip a multimedia lab with the support of the SCCA Network and the OSF B-H. This lab named pro.ba will be officially opened in early 1999. pro.ba was conceived as a structure where the artists will be able to realize their media projects. Apart from that, there will be courses and lectures in creative use of the digital media in the fields of design and fine arts. Actually, pro.ba started with its work in 1998, when the digital video editing computer arrived. Sixteen videos were produced in that first "probation" period. Those videos were the result of an open contest for young video authors to submit the scripts, in early 1998. This production (also presented at the IV Sarajevo Film Festival in the section called "Made in Bosna") was the core of the Second SCCA's Annual Exhibition "Beyond the Mirror," which focused on the use of electronic media in contemporary art.

However, the Annual Exhibition was not limited only to the production and presentation of art videos and video installations. The subject "Beyond the Mirror" opened a possibility of free choice of means and locations (from streets to galleries) to the artists. SCCA - Sarajevo financed the realization of all projects, which were again selected after a public contest. The exhibition was held during the Film Festival because of the two being media-complementary, and because one of its segments (video) was a part of the Film Festival. This exhibition (organized in the public "unprotected" space) will be remembered as an important new experience of collision of interests between "owners" and "users" of the public space. The most extreme example was when the Cantonal authorities put away (censored) the work of Nebojša Šerić-Šoba "Under All Those Flags..." without any explanation. This dangerous precedent again raises the question of the limits of freedom of art. That "case" at the same time confirms the fact that art is not a decoration; it is not "harmless"; and that it is, on the contrary subversive in its essence.
International activities were in two ways: presentation of their own production and documentation of the local artists and their actions to the world (the Centre started a continuous collaboration with the Museum of Modern Art in Vienna and the Saint-Gervais Centre for visual research from Geneva), organizing participation of Bosnian artists at international exhibitions (Alma Suljević, Salim Obralić); presenting international artists, critics, and designers and by organizing lectures, seminars, workshops, and exhibitions. The aim of this activity was to introduce the recent developments and events on the international scene to the local scene, as well as education of the visual arts students in those fields which are not included in the educational programs of their Academy.

Going out of Sarajevo and more active work in other parts of Bosnia and Herzegovina remain our task for the next year.

EAST EAST NETWORK PROGRAM

In 1998, East East Network Program of the OSF B-H tried to be more active as a host (OSF B-H was a hosting foundation four times in 1998) but also to continue to send participants to initiatives that were launched by colleagues in other countries in the network. We tried to take a more proactive approach in some fields such as NGOs development and youth in democratization process.

The number of non-governmental organizations in B-H is increasing rapidly. The NGO Sector has now expanded to include many organizations covering a wide variety of issues. In the future these NGOs will be called upon to play an increasingly prominent role in the process of reconstruction and revitalization of B-H.

According to this, East East Program tried to identify NGOs in both the Federation and RS and to involve them into projects and initiatives from other countries in the region. B-H NGOs representatives have participated in several conferences and seminars organized by other East East Program Countries.

Most of the East East Seminars and Conferences were organized around the subject of fundraising, sustainability, and definitions of NGOs. In a following period we hope that B-H NGOs will initiate some hosting projects and issues.

In 1998 OSF B-H had an idea for initiating more active co-operation among students from B-H, other countries of Former Yugoslavia, and other East East Program countries. Since the Youth Network is very active in countries of Former Yugoslavia, we decided to initiate some projects here in B-H in order to gather young people and to offer them an opportunity to discuss issues concerning future development of youth network in B-H in general.

Through these initiatives we hope that young people got a chance to become more independent, capable of making a choice, capable of solving a problems, ready to learn and explore, and responsible towards community.
According to the general OSF B-H strategy, initiatives in the field of human rights and women's programs were also supported within 1998 East East Program.

TRAVEL AND CONFERENCE PROGRAM

Travel and Conference Program in 1998 generally followed the same principles as in 1997; that is, the program provided support for various specialized seminars, workshops, congresses, and conferences to students eager to improve their professional training, and to experts wishing to share their experience and views in the fields of science, culture, and education.

In the 1998 Travel and Conference Program, 232 grants were realized, totaling .....276.525 DM.

This year, special attention was paid to congresses, seminars, and workshops in which grantees presented their scientific and research work. In the program Open Society Fund B-H also supported study trips of experts in the fields of social sciences and humanities (law, philosophy, economy, etc.). Most of these seminars included development of civil society and democracy in general, promoting open society ideas. The support provided through the Travel and Conference Program represented an important factor in establishing links among people and institutions of different profiles, in a broader context.
There was a shift in 1998 to preference for participants in the field of humanities. This support was provided in accordance with the Open Society Fund B-H 1998 strategy.

SOCIAL WELFARE

During the 1998 Open Society Fund B-H tried to spread very modest funds in this field, according to the needs of vulnerable groups. All grants were approved directly by the Board. Main aim of the program was to enable disabled persons to start up their own small businesses and make them self sustainable, as well as support for rehabilitation centers. Donated funds were very modest due to major strategy for "sunsetting" this program.

1. Medical Rehabilitation Center, Fojnica:
   Surgery equipment ..... 15.980 DM

THIRD PARTY FUNDING GRANTS

This program represents funds provided by Open Society Fund B-H from outside the network by other donors, for the purposes of financing those programs which are not covered by Open Society Fund B-H activities and programs. The common goals are creating the conditions for an open society.
The openness of Open Society Fund B-H attracts other donors to contribute to the development of a democratic society within Bosnia and Herzegovina. Open Society Fund B-H has the right to spent these funds on discretionary basis by supporting decisions of the Management Board.
Some of projects financed through this program were evaluated by Open Society Fund B-H Board as very important. One of the major donors was East West Management Institute, New York.
